Course Description

The course will introduce students to a multidisciplinary vision of international investment law and policy and its relationship with sustainable development. The course will start by explaining the concept of sustainable investment and addressing the different features and impacts of different types of cross-border investment and their different challenges and opportunities posed for sustainable development.
Before drilling on the features of international investment law, the course will also explain how over the last decade the patterns of international production for goods and services shaping international investment are in turn responding to deep environmental, geopolitical and technological transformations. Further, the course will explain how these tectonic shifts have translated into domestic and international social and political pressures reshaping the international investment regime. Within this context, from a multidisciplinary perspective, this course will provide participants with a thorough understanding of these developments and how they are shaping international investment law. Further the course will explain the evolution of the contents and implementation of different international agreements covering investment, including the WTO, Preferential Trade Agreements and Bilateral Investment Treaties, and how to leverage them in practice for sustainable development, including for purposes of managing conflict among stakeholders on the ground.

This course will be of particular interest to academics, legal practitioners and policy makers interested in sustainable investment and development, and to anyone interest in learning how to design, implement and leverage international investment agreements to foster inclusive and green economic growth.

Lecturers

Roberto Echandi

Dr. Roberto Echandi is a Lead Trade Specialist in the Trade Unit of the Macroeconomics, Trade and Investment Global Practice of the World Bank Group (WBG). From this position, his current work program focuses on research and policy advice on issues related to cross border trade in services, negotiation, implementation and maximization of potential benefits of Trade Agreements.

He is also member of the Editorial Board of the Journal of World Investment and Trade (JWIT), Member of the Faculty of the Academy of International Economic Law and Policy at Athens, Greece, and Adjunct Professor of the Institute of International Studies at the National University of Malaysia.

Prior to joining the WBG trade unit, he was the Global Lead for Investment Policy and Promotion of the Trade and Competitiveness Global Practice of the WBG. Before joining the WBG, he was Director of the Program on International Investment at the World Trade Institute (WTI) of the University of Bern, where he continues to be part of the Advisory Board and Faculty of visiting professors.

Dr. Echandi was Costa Rica’s Ambassador to Belgium, Luxembourg and the European Union from 2007 to 2010. During the same period, he was also Chief Negotiator for the Association Agreement negotiations between the EU and Central America, where he led the negotiation process on behalf of Costa Rica and in many occasions for the whole Central American region. From October 2002 until January 2005, he also served as Special Adjunct Ambassador for U.S. Trade Affairs and lead negotiator in services and investment in the US-Central America Free Trade Agreement (CAFTA).

Among other positions in academia and international organizations, Dr. Echandi has also been Faculty of the master’s in international Economic Law (IELPO) at the University of Barcelona, member of the Editorial Board of the Journal of International Economic Law (JIEL), Adjunct Professor at the Georgetown University Law Center, Contributor Expert of the Latin American Program of the Baker Center at Rice University, and Legal Affairs Officer of the WTO Appellate Body Secretariat. For more than 15 years, Dr. Echandi led Costa Rican delegations to multiple trade and investment bilateral and regional negotiations and was been heavily involved in domestic policy reforms to ensure implementation of international trade and investment agreements in Costa Rica. Roberto Echandi has a Ph.D in international law from the University of Bern, an LL.M. from the University of Michigan School of Law at Ann Arbor; an M.Phil. in Latin American studies with emphasis in economic integration at the University of Oxford; a Licenciatura en Derecho from the University of Costa Rica, and studies at the JFK School of Government of Harvard University.
