

Dora Sari

Dora Sari has a decade of work experience on the field of international labor regulation. She co-developed both the Labor Rights Indicators database hosted at the Pennsylvania State University's Center for Global Worker's Rights and the Labor Provisions in Trade Agreements database under a collaborative research project funded by the Swiss Network for International Studies. She has extensive experience working with the International Labour Organization and various other international organizations on labor- and social-related issues. She is a research fellow at Harvard University's Labor and Worklife Program and is currently pursuing her PhD degree in political science at the University of Geneva focusing on labor provisions in trade agreements and global labor governance issues.