In the second part the history of the world economy’s global architecture is discussed and selected research areas presented, such the role of domestic factors, international organizations, new regionalism, trade-labor linkages and development.

Lecturers

Manfred Elsig

Manfred Elsig is Professor of International Relations at the World Trade Institute (University of Bern) since 2009. He is the Deputy Director of the WTI and its Director of Research. He studied at the Universities of Bern and Bordeaux and earned a degree in political science. He worked from 1997–1999 at the Swiss Federal Office for Foreign Economic Affairs. He then joined the Political Science Institute of the University of Zurich and received his PhD (Dr. phil) in 2002. From 2002–2004, he worked for UBS financial services group and as a personal advisor to the Minister of Economy of Canton Zurich. Before joining the WTI in 2005, he was a teaching fellow at the London School of Economics and Political Science. His research focuses primarily on the politics of international trade, European trade policy, international organizations, US–EU relations, and private actors in global politics. He has published over 30 peer-reviewed articles.
Guest lecturers:

Cédric Dupont
Cédric Dupont is Professor of International Relations and Director of Executive Education at the Graduate Institute of International Studies, Geneva. He is a Senior Research Fellow of the Berkeley Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation Study Center (BASC) at the University of California at Berkeley. He has written extensively on regional integration developments in Western Europe, on domestic–international linkages in international negotiations and on game-theoretic modelling in political science. His current research focuses on the political economy of investment arbitration, on the governance of world and regional integration processes and on institutional performance of various international governance arrangements.

Aydin Yildirim
Aydin Yildirim is a post-doctoral researcher at the World Trade Institute. He is a fellow of the Robert Schuman Centre of the European University Institute (EUI) as well as a Guest Professor at the University of Antwerp in Belgium. Previously he was a fellow of the Nuffield College of the University of Oxford and a Max Weber Fellow at the EUI. He has published on the politics of World Trade Organization dispute settlement and the role of globalization of production on trade policy making. His current research focuses on the role of multinational corporations (MNCs) supply chain networks on global economic governance.

Patrick Wagner
Patrick Wagner is a post-doctoral researcher at the World Trade Institute. He holds a PhD from the University of Bern. He graduated magna cum laude from University of California, Davis with a Bachelor’s in International Relations and finished a Master’s degree with Distinction in International Public Policy from University College London. Patrick’s research has so far focused on the effects of democratic institutional variation on electoral competition and personnel strategies and, most recently, electoral system variation and international trade policy outcomes. Some of Patrick’s areas of theoretical and empirical interest are (though certainly are not limited to) the policy and distributional effects of democratic institutions, the subnational causes and effects of international trade and investment policies, modern monetary theory, and the causes of popular perceptions of redistributive and other economic policies.
