Course description

Being an effective negotiator is a critical skill in any profession. Negotiation skills are important in all life situations and in every profession. The negotiation process is a comprehensive strategy for resolving conflicts of interest in a sustainable way. It is based on skills that are not innate, but can be acquired and improved through intensive and practical study.

This course will introduce you to some of the basic aspects of negotiation theory and practice. It is an interactive learning-by-doing course that focuses on the basic skills of negotiation. It can change participants' perspectives on how negotiations should be planned, structured and conducted to be successful. The course includes negotiation theory and concepts as well as extensive preparatory reading, combined with role-playing and mock negotiations, case analysis, class discussions and self-assessment tools.

The course is designed for those who would like to learn and reflect on how to resolve conflicts of interest in a sustainable manner – even under time pressure; who are interested in applying what they have learned in exercises in class and in daily practice; and who are willing to actively participate in all modules of the course.

“To me, this course was about more than just grades, which is not something I can say for a lot of courses” (M.J., course participant, WTI, spring term 2022)

Learning objectives

This course is designed to increase participants' awareness of the negotiation process, including the influence of the negotiating parties' interests, goals, perceptions and emotions. It teaches practical concepts of negotiation and participants will develop and improve their negotiation skills in different contexts. Participants will also learn how to negotiate under pressure, how to step out of their comfort zone, and how to critically evaluate themselves and their performance. Overall, this course aims to increase participants' skills and confidence as negotiators.

Learning outcomes

On successful completion of the course, students shall be able to:

- have a sense of how negotiations are conducted on a bi- and plurilateral level,
- have an increased awareness of the negotiation process and your own performance, understand the concepts and tools for analyzing and addressing negotiation situations in a variety of contexts,
- understand the influence of human interests, goals, perceptions, and emotions on the negotiation process and the negotiation result, and to have gained awareness and skills in negotiation situations as well as confidence in negotiating.

Lecturer

Prof. Dr. Felix Addor is the Deputy Director General of the Swiss Federal Institute of Intellectual Property (Swiss Ministry of Justice), the federal agency responsible for all intellectual property matters in Switzerland. As the Institute's General Counsel and Director of the Legal and International Affairs Division, he has been responsible for all legal and policy matters regarding all fields of intellectual property at the national and international levels since 1999. He is responsible, among other things, for directing and supervising Swiss negotiating delegations at the relevant international fora, such as the World Trade Organization and the World Intellectual Property Organization, as well as at bilateral and plurilateral IP negotiations. He also co-chairs the Swiss Federal Interdepartmental Working Group on Public Health, Innovation, Trade and Intellectual Property, and is a Member of the Strategy Committee for Swiss Foreign Policy on Global Health.

In addition, Prof. Addor has been a member of the external faculty of the World Trade Institute since its establishment (1999). Since 2008, he has been a Professor \('Titular professor'\) at the Faculty of Law, University of Bern. He lectures on intellectual property law, international negotiations and global governance, and is, among others, co-responsible for the Model United Nations Seminar. Moreover, since 2013 Prof. Addor has been a Senior Fellow at the Global Health Centre of the Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies, Geneva. Since 2020, he is a lecturer on international negotiation at the Law Faculty of the University of Zurich as well as a senior fellow at the Institute for Global Negotiations jointly hosted by the Chair of Political Philosophy of the University of Zurich and the Chair of Negotiation and Conflict Management of ETH Zurich.

Prof. Addor has authored numerous articles, and is a regular guest lecturer on a broad range of intellectual property and negotiation issues. He received his MLaw (magna cum laude) and his Dr. iur. (summa cum laude, awarded 1997 by the Professor Walther Hug Foundation) from the University of Bern, and has been admitted to the Canton Bern State Bar since 1990.

Grades and assessment

Participants, who take the course to obtain an advanced master's degree or a Certificate or Diploma of Advanced Studies, will be assessed on their preparation to the negotiation simulation between days 3 and 4 of this course. The preparation will consist of a short and concise written paper detailing the participant's role and objectives for the negotiation simulation. The individual roles as well as requirements for this assessment will be handed out on course day 3 during the introduction to the case study. The paper will need to be handed in electronically (masters@wti.org) prior to the negotiation simulation of day 4 – that is to say no later than Thursday, 21 March 2024, 24:00. Be aware of the fact that you will receive 1.0 as a grade if you hand in your paper late!

In addition, your overall oral performance during the course (i.e., your participation and the quality of your contributions in class and in the negotiation exercises) will be taken into account to adjust your grade up or down (+/- 0.5).

A note on confidentiality

A sense of openness and trust among participants will increase our ability to share with and learn from each other. To encourage the free exchange of experiences, suggestions, and ideas, participants are asked to keep the information that they receive in the negotiation exercises as confidential. In addition, please refrain from discussing the exercises and cases with anyone outside of this course. If either the structure of a case or the substantive facts of an exercise should become widely known, the exercise risks may be of little use to participants in future courses.

Handling of absences

It is essential that participants organize themselves so that they can attend all four course days from 09:00 – 18:00! If someone is unable to attend all or part of ONE of the course days due to illness, this person may exceptionally continue with the course provided that this person has sent a written notice and an official Swiss medic certificate issued by a Swiss doctor or medical service to the course teacher and the WTI office 24 hours prior to that course day. In addition, this person will have to prepare all the missed material, i.e. read the corresponding mandatory and non-mandatory background reading before the next course day. Of course, this person must also write the assigned paper, which is due after course day 3 and before course day 4. If someone does not write this paper by the due date, that person will receive a grade of 1 (fail grade) for the course.

If someone is absent for more than one day of the course, it makes no sense for that person to write the position paper (between days 3 and 4). In consequence, that person will receive a grade of 1 (fail grade) for the course, since the entire course is only four course days long, and therefore 50% of the course is missed.

If someone is absent for any reason other than illness or without a prior written excuse, that person will receive a grade of 1 (fail grade) for the course and will NOT be allowed to continue in the course, as attendance at all four classes is mandatory.

Compulsory reading (to be read before the 1st course day)

- Roy J. Lewicki, Bruce Barry and David M. Saunders, Essentials of Negotiation, 7th International Edition 2020, New York / McGraw-Hill, ISBN: 9781260570458 (note: the International Edition of the book is a condensed version of the main text, Negotiation, 8e, and is significantly less expensive). The book can be ordered from Orell Füssli. Several examples of this book are available at the WTI library, too.

This book explores the major concepts and theories of negotiation psychology and the dynamics of interpersonal and intergroup conflict and resolution. Participants are encouraged to read the whole book (it's an interesting, informative book and easy to read); in any case, they must have read at least chapters 1 -4 and 10-12 before course day 1.

Additional homework assignments (preparation and debriefing materials) will be sent to the participants electronically at the end of each course day.
